

2016 Jean Bartel Scholarship for Military Awareness

THE AWARD:

Blessed with a beautiful soprano voice, Jean Bartel had an enormous desire to realize a girlhood dream of appearing on the Broadway stage. When she learned that Horace Schmidlapp, the financial backer of the hit show "Oklahoma, was going to judge The Miss America Pageant, Jean decided to enter. In a whirlwind of events she became Miss California, and then was off to Atlantic City singing Cole Porter's "Night and Day." This dramatic performance as a gifted soprano helped Jean to be crowned Miss America 1943.

Jean took on the commitment of a "War-Time" Miss America to heart, as she embarked on a Bond-selling tour that would result in her being honored by the United States Treasury Department as the individual who had sold the most Series E Bonds that year. Two and one half million dollars worth, and surprisingly most of these twenty-five dollar bonds were sold to women.

It was on this tour, at a "tea" sponsored by her college sorority sisters, that Jean's reasoning of a college scholarship to be awarded to a Miss America was unveiled. "Opera singers get financial support from sponsors, so why not a college scholarship for Miss America." This idea was discussed with the Board of Directors and later adopted to become what we know of today as the world's largest single source of college scholarships for women.

That was only the beginning of a wonderful legacy for Miss America 1943 Jean Bartel.

Over 1.3 million Americans have answered the call to serve their country. The brave men and women who volunteer to invest their time in the United States Military are some of the most well respected citizens of the country. And choosing to enter the military should not translate into sacrificing your plans of getting a college education. Our soldiers fight for our freedom as well as for our security. The line of duty has its stakes and lives are at risk.

Applicants considered for the Jean Bartel Scholarship for Military Awareness is based upon a combination of factors including, but not limited to, grade point average (high school & college/university), class rank, extra-curricular activities, financial aid requirements, household income and level of participation within the MAO system and an essay describing how the applicant fulfilled a legitimate need in their community through the creation, development and/or participation in a community based project or event to raise the awareness of our proud military men and women who dedicate their lives for our freedom.
